HONGRONG, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28, 1893

THE all-absorbing topic of conversation in nearly every circle in the East is the sharp decline in silver and the dreaded further decline in value of the white metal. On the principle the sharper the blast, the shorter twill last, it may be hoped the severe fall in silver which has followed the action taken by India may not last very long. But who can tell? It is unsefe to dogmatise upon such matters, as no one who is even in a position to know something about the silver question seems to have the heart to prognosticate what the course of the market may be. One thinks that the half-crown limit of the dollar is the bottom price; while others fear it may go considerably lower. Our morning contemporary appears to look upon a one-and-sixpenny dollar as a possibility. on the score that silver can be produced even at as low a cost as 9d. per ounce. This is, we think, taking not only an over-gloomy but an inaccurate and needlessly extreme view of the situation. It is true that the repeal of the Sherman Act in the States may cause a further decline, but the holders of silver may, if strong enough, hold their stocks for better prices-if, indeed, the Silver men do not prevent the repeal of the silver-purchasing law. The action of the Indian Government is not altogether a surprise, as the probability of protecting the rupee has been more than once suggested. The disastrous influ ence which such a course must exercis upon the 'unprotected' silver furnishe a conclusive proof, to the advocatee of a fixity of standard by international consent, of the necessity for some general agreement being arrived at by which an end would be put to these trade-destroying fluctuations. If Threadneedle Street could be brought to regard bimetallism (or a fixity of standard, if that expression is preferred) from a less one-sided point of view than at present, an agreement could be arrived at. England stops the way, and Home Rule now stops England. There are, of course, many persons who are strongly averse to any change; but the times have so altered that something must be done, and the Eastern trade (which must be worth something to England) ought now to be considered. And now that India has begun to fight for her own hand-after waiting long and patiently for relief from the Mother Country-the threatened collapse of trade with silver-using countries will surely open the eyes of those at Home whose business it is to safeguard the commercial interest of the Empire. To talk of Federation and to make demonstrations over Imperial Institutes are all very well, but to play with this great question instead of grappling with it is a very grave error. That we believe is the opinion of most of our soundest men in England, although it cannot be denied that opposite views are held by men of position. The evil to be remedied, however, is unfortunately too marked to be overlooked much longer; and if this sharp decline in silver values, and the consequent paralysis of trade in India and the East, leads to a speedier consideration of the subject, of the latest and most approved kind, then the action of India may turn out and we are well able to compete in to be the best thing that could have

THE CRISIS IN SIAM.

The Straits Times' Bangkok correspondont writes as follows, under date June

Affairs in Siam are decidedly approaching | ed' instead of being frammelled and weigha crisis, and the next fortnight or three ed down as it now is by the monometallist weeks is pretty nearly the limit to which it lides .- Money Market Review. can endure. The British Minister, Capt. Jones, V. C., is trying hard to arrange for the transfer of the negotiations to Paris, his idea probably being that they can be more amicably conducted there, under the eyes of Europe, so to speak, than by the Governor General of Cochin-China, surrounded by journals eternally shricking for immediate war, and by officials who certainly have nothing to lose if a campaign is decided on. Whether Capt. Jones will succeed in his endeavours as mediator is, however, by no means cortain.

The situation as far as France is concerned is singularly like that of 1885, in Tonquin. You will remember the war with China was nover formally declared-not a single consul hauled down his tricolour in To-DAY at the Magistracy a matmaker, for the Treaty Ports, although the minister did, if my recollection serves me, leave Peking for Shanghai. Yet the struggle the same here. Capt. Thoreux is on his way hither, under Siamese escort (though be will be liberated on arrival); Khone is besieged : troops are drilling here hourly. and being sent Mekongwards in small batfray-and yet those who are most likely to know say that war will not be proclaimed.

> I have spoken of the preparations for war. They are quite the biggest thing Siam has ever gone in for, though it must be remembered that, excepting for a triwhich is a big ironclad just built at Pretoria between Sir Henry Loch and system of Parliamentary Government in the first ball he received into the hands of Trumble, not out ... ... ... at Leith, but really far more of a yacht President Kruger resulted in the conclusion | that colony, petitioned the llome Gover | point, and at 23 Turner's off stump was | Sundries ... than a warship. A Danish merchant here has just gone home to get one or two more for the Stamese Government, and meantime all the powder, cartridges and rifles in the East are being bought up at famine prices. The river is also being mined by the naval department, and a look-out is kept across the bar for the hostile fleet. In the river a little French fighting craft, and a slightly bigger English ditto, are anchored opposite their respective legations, waiting for the ball to open.

Trade is naturally being considerably affected; exports are almost stopped and in some cases property holders are realising their possessions. There is the usual crowd of adventurers, ready for anything. from leading a Siamese forlorn hope, sonally, I sympathise to some extent with the people here, I cannot but admit that the army is much akin to Falstaff's famous company. There are perhaps five thousand altogether, many of them pressed men. of them have ever fired, baro-footed, in arroacs with their pay, and-if it is not treason to say it -very far from brave. opposed to Annamite troops they might do something; if put in the field against what Von Moltke called his men-cannonfood.' They are fairly well officeredthree or four Danes, an Italian, and one or two others have charge, under H. R. H. Prince Bhanwangsi, eldest brother but one to the King-but they are of a race so preeminently lazy, and amiable, and peaceloving, that it is difficult to conceive, in the absence of any proof to the contrary, that

I'm glad to get out of this crowd. I've had to stand on one foot all the way. Voice from the corner-Yes, and that one foot was
